British Standard BS8599-1:2019

First Aid Buyers Guide

In July 2011, the new BS8599-1 regulations were released regarding workplace first aid. With a variation of kits and refills to choose from, SLS can provide your workplace with the products you require to react to minor workplace injuries.

When deciding on your first aid needs it is important to consider the following points:

1. CONSIDER THE NEED

First aid kits come in different shapes, sizes, and configurations. Is your workplace in a low or high-risk environment? The kit you need will depend on the environment you work in, so an office will generally use first aid kits less often than a warehouse or manufacturing plant.

2. DO A HEADCOUNT

Pay attention to how many people the first aid kit is expected to treat so that it's well-stocked and you don't run out of important items too quickly.

3. LOOK FOR FIRST AID KITS WITH EASY REFILLS

Some first aid kits are designed to be easily replenished, with convenient refill packs available for the most commonly used items. Periodically check your first aid kit to make sure it has everything you need.

4. TAKE FIRST AID WITH YOU

Remember to take a portable first aid kit when you travel. Often these are smaller than a standard kit and intended for easy transport. If you have a first aid kit already, be sure to check it before trips so you depart prepared.

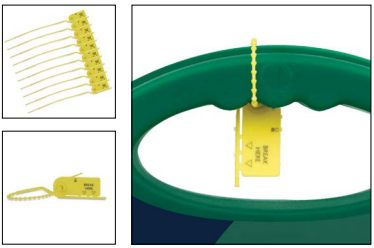

5. KEEP YOUR KIT FRESH

Regularly check your first aid kit for product expiration dates. In addition to medicines and ointments, remember that bandages may lose their elasticity or stickiness if too old. If past the expiration date, dispose of products properly and resupply.

Security Seal

- Saving time.
- Unbroken seal, complete contents.

At a glance, you can be confident that your primary first aid kits are compliant by using the included security seal. The security seal can easily be broken by hand in the case of an emergency and visibly indicates that components of the kit may be missing if it has been removed.

First aid kits are supplied complete with a security seal, so Health & Safety Managers can easily monitor first aid usage.

What size of kit do I need?

The information in the table below provides guidance for employers but does not replace the requirement for a risk assessment to be carried out.

From your risk assessment, what degree of hazard is associated with your work activities?

How many employees do you have?	Quantity and size of kits required.
LOW RISK e.g. shops, offices, libraries etc.
Fewer than 25	1 Small Kit
25 – 100	1 Medium Kit
More than 100	1 Large Kit per 100 employees
HIGH RISK e.g. light engineering and assembly work, food processing, warehousing, etc.
Fewer than 5	1 Small Kit
5 – 25	1 Medium Kit
More than 25	1 Large Kit per 25 employees

British Standard Supplementary First Aid Kits

If you have lone workers or those who work away from the workplace, such as security, cleaners, maintenance, etc. a Personal Issue Kit enables basic first aid to be provided quickly and easily.

If you have employees who are at risk of a severe life-threatening bleed or in the event of a mass-casualty attack, a Critical Injury Pack is required as standard first aid kits are not appropriately equipped. Your employees also need to have appropriate training so they know how to use it.
